The First Step in the Hiring Process
What you should do before seeking a new employee?
Develop accurate role profiles and job description based upon the culture of your facility, management team, Members and Guests.
Determine who should be involved in the hiring process?

Who at your facility participates in the hiring process now?

Do you allow team members to be part of the interview process?
Do you have compensation rates for all levels within your department?

What resources do you use to develop compensation rates?

Do you know what other courses are paying in the area?

Are you competitive with your compensation?
How do you advertise positions?

How do you attract or recruit new team members?
Do you know what you are looking for?
Do you incentivize your current team members to recruit?

Do you provide your team members with recruitment cards to give to prospective employee’s?
When you have someone fill out an application with no golf course experience, do you consider them?
Do you mention career development, mentoring, continuing education value and opportunities? Certificates for Equipment Technicians, etc.

Hire for strengths and skills, not the place where they previously worked.
"Somebody once said that in looking for people to hire, you look for three qualities: integrity, intelligence, and energy. And if you don't have the first, the other two will kill you. You think about it; it's true. If you hire somebody without [integrity], you really want them to be dumb and lazy."

- Warren Buffet
What kind of interview questions do you ask?

• Tell me about a time when you were asked to do something you didn’t think was right?

• Talk to me about a time when you were faced with an angry member. How did you handle it?

• What do you dislike most about your current job?

• How do you handle employees that are late to work?
Post Interview
Do you check references? If so, how and why?
Do you interview the references?
On-boarding
What do you do the first day with a new employee?
Do you have a 90-day probationary period?
Discussion time on how to identify a doer vs. a teller
Readers? Approach to continually learning, well-rounded.
Do new employees learn the history of the club, course and facility?
Do you have new employees spend time with each department head?
Don’t hire someone who is just like you. Hire individuals who compliment your strengths or compliment your weaknesses to create a balanced, dynamic team.
